

Eagle Brand Knives Parker

There have been no short cuts in making your fine Eagle Quality knife starting with the finest available special alloy cutlery steels for blades, solid german silver for bolsters and solid brass for linings, each knife is made individually with exacting care. Blades are hardened in an electrically controlled hearth furnace, quenched in oil then tempered in special "pit" furnaces to "relieve" any stresses or strains created in the steel during the hardening process. Each blade is tested to insure just the perfect degree of hardness to maintain the cutting edge but not be "brittle". Each blade must register a hardness of 57 to 59 on the Rockwell "C" scale or be rejected and this hardness must be uniform along the entire length of the blade. Hand cutlery and sharpening prepare the knife for final inspection and the Eagle Quality stamp of approval. Parker Cut Eagle Brand imported knives carry surgical
